Activities Fair Perfect Time to Brush Against Cute Girl's Ass

By Sam Block

EVANSTON – This Monday, freshmen poured into Norris for the Activities Fair, a time-worn Northwestern tradition in which members of the incoming class sign away their inboxes to listserv upon listserv in exchange for free candy. The entire Class of 2013 was successfully crammed into the student center, effectively causing what administrators called “a fire code nightmare.”

Some freshmen, however, decided to turn the close-quarters situation into their advantage. Casually walking past the “Germ”any Disease Association, young freshmen like Jeff Le-rman moved uncomfortably close to the cute girls walking in front of him.

Lerman, who (unbeknownst to his high-school friends) has not gotten any action during Welcome Week, said, “My left thigh definitely rubbed against that girl's right butt cheek.”

“I always knew I was going to get so much ass at Northwestern,” Lerman added.

Several females reported feeling a variety of different grips on their derrières during the event. Recent case studies demonstrate that backhanding was incredibly popular. Although forehanding provides a more satisfying squeeze, males cite reasons to use the backhand as “it's less obvious” and “it's classier.”

The tables were turned around the Rainbow Alliance booth, however, where several males reported uncomfortable brush-bys, if not all-out grind-fests.

Another victim, Rachel Berzon, was violated many times in her Joe's Jeans. She explains, “Right around the Lithuanian Group of Native Americans Against Gambling, I thought somebody was trying to pick-pocket me. I turned around, readied my mace, and saw that it was only an ugly freshman smiling uncontrollably and pretending it wasn't his hand that was just touching my rump.”

Since cute girls travel in packs,

Rachel's equally cute friend had a myriad of Purell-less and possibly swine flu-infected hands on her toolkus. Eve, a devout prude, has not been this disappointed since the March Through the Arch. She stated, “If I wanted that stuff, I would just go Greek.”

Breaking News: Tyler Perry Makes Movie About Black People

By Chase Sund

HOLLYWOOD – Lionsgate Entertainment announced Tuesday that filmmaker Tyler Perry has plans to create a picture about African-Americans. The movie is to be released in theaters on October 23rd, but most critics are surprised that it managed to break free of the “straight-to-DVD” branding of most “stupid” movies.

“This is a huge step forward in filmmaking,” said Cornelius Jones, a Lionsgate executive. “Never before has there been a film geared mostly towards an ethnic audience about a single ethnic group. [Perry] is really stepping out of his comfort zone with this endeavor.”

Perry's last picture grossed an astounding $40 million dollars, so the release of Madea Does Some Moderately Funny Shit may shape up to be not only a groundbreaking film, but also one that somehow actually makes a ton of money. The post-humorous appearance of both Bernie Mac and Isaac Hayes (making a cameo as Chef) should also boost sales. Furthermore, Oprah Winfrey endorsed the film as, “Practically as good as Roots, except without Willis from Diff'rent Strokes.” This kind of endorsement, judging by the success of A Million Little Pieces, could skyrocket Perry to superstardom.

Reportedly, UPN offered to buy the rights to a sitcom spin-off, starring one of the twins from Sister, Sister, Steve Harvey, and the lead singer of Hootie and the Blowfish. Says Maya Angelou, “At this rate, we could have a black President of the United States.”

Kanye West Interrupts President's Convocation Address

By Sam Gutelle

EVANSTON—Northwestern President Morton Schapiro's convocation address to incoming freshmen was rudely interrupted when Kanye West barged onto the stage and interrupted the speech. The well-known rapper grabbed the microphone from Schapiro's grip and spoke to the shocked group of freshmen. "I've seen crazy things before, but nothing quite like this," commented freshman John Rennault, "Who would believe that someone as fly as Morton Schapiro would be interrupted in the middle of an address?"

After grabbing the mic, West did not waste time. "Morton," he said, "I'm happy for you, and I'mma let you finish, but Henry Bienen had one of the best convocation addresses of ALL TIME!" He then repeated "OF ALL TIME" once more before returning the mic to a speechless Schapiro and taking his seat once again.

Pick-Staiger employees are not sure how West was able to get a seat at an event reserved for Northwestern freshmen. One usher believes he used the pseudonym 'Pronea East' to hide his true identity, waiting until the right time to upstage Schapiro. Others became suspicious when they noticed West's entire entourage parked on Arts Circle Drive. Shapiro commented afterward, "We'll have to take steps in the future to ensure that security is tighter than it was today."

President Obama had a much uncharacteristic reaction, calling West a "punk-ass bitch". The rapper was quick to comment on this barb, saying, "I don't care about Barack Obama. If I've said it once, I've said it a million times: Barack Obama doesn't care about black people."

Band of Lost Boys Discovered in Tech Basement

Lab Coat Tents Line A Wing

By Michael Guhin

EVANSTON – When freshman Conrad Stevens went to his first lab in Tech on Wednesday, he ended up stumbling upon a colony of students living in the halls.

"I'd just passed L22 for the fifth goddamn time," Stevens recounts, "when I saw something move out of the corner of my eye. I could have sworn I heard whispers."

Upon investigation, Stevens realized he had found a small village lining the halls of the A wing basement. "They were all wearing long-sleeved shirts, pants, socks, closed-toed shoes, and safety... fuck, I forgot my goggles!" Stevens recalls.

These so-called "Lost Boys" are, in fact, an entire freshman lab session from last year who, through a typo, were scheduled to meet in "A2." Senior Benjamin Wells remarked, "any freshman that doesn't know A2 isn't a real room deserves to be lost in Tech for a year, living off scraps of food and deionized water. When I was a freshman I spent a whole week living in the Tribune Center because I didn't realize it was different from McCormick Hall." When reached for a followup, Stevens raised a thought-provoking question, "Who the fuck put the L Wing between B and G?!"

Stevens is planning to give a talk to University maintenance entitled "This Is Why You Clean the Fucking Basement," though there is doubt whether maintenance workers will put aside their fears of encountering a minotaur in the Tech labyrinth.

Ask The Flipside

Dear The Northwestern Flipside,

I'm a freshman, where are the best places to hang out on campus?

Sincerely,

Mitch Skillman

Dear Mitch,

I'm glad you asked, as there are a lot of really cool places where really cool people hang out and do really cool stuff. For instance, there is a popular vampire-themed dance club in the 28th sub-basement of Tech. Don't worry, it has nothing to do with Twilight, many engineers simply find that long hours in Tech tend to instill a fear of the sun they haven't seen in years and a taste for the blood of humanities majors.

For those looking for an older, more experienced crowd, Pick-Staiger includes a swingers club which is run in conjunction with the Northshore Retirement Hotel. Also not to be underestimated is the Cliff Diving Club, which meets on the lakefill at 2:00 on Wednesday mornings. While it is true that nothing even slightly resembling a cliff can be seen within miles of the lakefill, it's certainly entertaining to watch them try.

Finally, for the truly adventurous, the nightly orgies on the roof of Slivka are not to be missed, especially in January. And you wondered why they never go outside.

PMA Found Stockpiling Estrogen Pills

By Corey Moss

EVANSTON – Phi Mu Alpha, Northwestern University's premier fraternity, has recently decided to invest the majority of its funds on estrogen pills in order to attempt to fit in with their neighboring sorority sisters. Located at 626 Emerson Street, the house is situated in the middle of sorority row. Recently, the musical brothers discovered that their neighbors are, in fact, female. As a result of this shocking find, many of PMA's residents have become overwhelmingly self-conscious and distraught because of their distinct physical builds.

President Matthew David Watras commented, "Many of the residents have been scared to leave the frat house. In fact, four of our brothers have been discovered hiding in a closet for the past week. I mean, what do you expect? We just don't fit in here. But this is our home, and we can't let it fall apart."

Determined to keep the brothers' morale and confidence afloat, Watras and other frat leaders realized that the pharmaceutical industry could save the group.

"These pills will give us the curves and figures that we've been longing for; but more importantly, they will help make us feel like we belong," said Watras. "We tried padded bras at first, but the effects are disappointingly temporary."

The PMA's will eventually be taking a group trip to CVS in order to purchase their deserved and much-needed female hormones. As an ensemble, they plan on marching through the streets of Evanston, instruments in hand, playing Christina Aguilera's "You are Beautiful" to signify their newfound pride and confidence. If the effects of the pills successfully manifest, the fraternity should no longer be agoraphobic. Yes, PMA might PMS because of their new investment. However, they will have finally found their place in sorority row.
